

Hitting the brakes

- Share markets in the US closed flat for August after a choppy month on the back of US political uncertainty, riots in Charlottesville and tensions in North Korea. The devastation of Hurricane Harvey also contributed to what has been the most volatile month in the S&P500 this year.
- US jobs data disappointed, with 156,000 jobs added against expectations of around 180,000. Also, previous job estimate numbers for June and July were reduced. Unemployment raised slightly to 4.4%, also a surprise. Despite this, we still expect strong US Q3 growth as jobs keep being added, the weaker US dollar strengthens exports and the Fed is now less likely to raise rates this calendar year due to subdued inflation.
- US Corporate Bond yields were up sharply over the month, though Government Bond yields were down on North Korea fears, and nervous investors turning from equities to bonds.
- The USD continued to fall against other major currencies, hitting a record low against the euro during the month. The AUD was still buying almost 0.8 USD by month-end due to doubts over the Trump administration's ability to pass legislation due to ongoing major staff changes.
- The local market took a hit from a money laundering case against a major bank. Despite this, there was sustained strength in labour market data, and improved business conditions.
