

Market wrap

A mixed bag

- After January's bounce, February was a little quieter but still ended in positive territory, with global shares up by 3.4% and 5.6% in hedged and unhedged terms respectively.
- US shares similarly were up 3%, a more modest rise than January's 7.9% rally, which was driven by a better-than-expected US reporting season.
- The full effects of the long US government shutdown are yet to be seen, but US GDP growth slowed significantly in the December 2018 quarter, to 2.6% following 3.4% growth in the September quarter.
- Australian shares performed well – twice as well as US shares, in fact - up 6% for the month.
- The RBA is currently forecasting growth of around 3% for the Australian economy in 2019, supported by increased business investment and public infrastructure spending.
- In the eurozone, hopes for avoiding widespread recession seem to be pinned on a strong Asian recovery, while the Brexit issue continues to cloud the UK economy.
- China-US trade relations have thawed somewhat, with Trump announcing that tariff increases on Chinese goods would be delayed, raising hopes that a trade agreement will be reached soon.
- The Australian dollar slipped slightly against all the major currencies, down to US71c and €0.62 at the end of the month.
